

New long-acting contraceptive device launched

A new, long-acting, reversible contraceptive, Jaydess, offers women effective protection from unintended pregnancy for up to three years, and is particularly suited for women who are not satisfied with their current daily, weekly or monthly contraceptive routine. Jaydess consists of a small, flexible, plastic T-shaped device that sits in the womb and releases low levels of a progestogen hormone. This helps to prevent ovulation as well as thinning the womb lining to prevent pregnancy. It is more than 99% effective yet can be removed at any time for a rapid return to usual fertility levels. For more information, talk to your doctor or family planning clinic.

- George Bernard Shaw

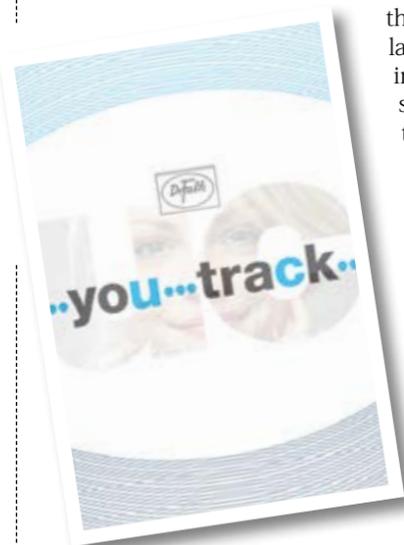

The art of medicine consists of amusing the patient while Nature cures the disease.

New approach for Ulcerative Colitis

Around 100,000 people in the UK currently suffer from Ulcerative Colitis, a painful and debilitating condition in which the lining of the large bowel becomes inflamed. Many struggle both with their complicated medical regime, and with charting their disease fluctuations (remittance and relapsing) long-term. A new app, You ... Track from Dr Falk Pharma, helps with both. Download free from iTunes to record your symptoms, medication and improve communication with your healthcare professionals – you can even email App reports directly to your nurse or doctor.

Beauty therapist transforming lives

Medical tattooist and skin specialist Caron Vetter is leading the way in transformational cosmetics with a revolutionary 3D nipple tattooing technique for women who have undergone breast cancer surgery. Areola restoration provides a realistic result following reconstructive surgery to rebuild the breast after mastectomy. The areola is created using a medical tattooing procedure which helps to cover any scar tissue and improves the overall appearance of the breast. Caron says, 'I strive to improve the appearance as much as possible, to help women feel they are normal again, and to give them back their confidence.' For more information, visit www.whitethornmediclinic.co.uk.

